If I may offer a word of advice, do not get rid of all your old computers. Since you are getting all new computers, I would expect them to be running MS Vista, which in my opinion is total garbage. Bill gates stated that Vista is problem free then released a myriad of fixes for this "perfect" system. My HP quad core hangs or crashes at least three times a day.

We'll be getting Hewlett-Packard computers with flat panel monitors. We're going to continue to use Windows XP Professional for an undetermined amount of time, however, we will be switching to Microsoft Office 2007. Thanks for all the great questions and comments!

IRS Thanks Libraries for Public Service

On April 24, the Internal Revenue Service sent a letter to the American Library Association congratulating libraries on the 50th Anniversary of National Library Week and thanking libraries for their excellent service to the public. Here is an excerpt:

"In honor of the 50th anniversary of National Library Week, I would like to offer my personal congratulations and heartfelt thanks for your public service.

The relationship between America's libraries and the Internal Revenue Service is long and storied. We have come from a day when a patron visited his local library to pick up a tax form to today when a new small business owner stops by to learn about his federal tax responsibilities and order the 2008 Small Business Resource Guide online.

We appreciate the important role libraries play in meeting individual needs for tax help and information. A recent example is the excellent assistance librarians provided to taxpayers entitled to Economic Stimulus payments. We are now strengthening our partnership with libraries in a new area, meeting the unique needs of small business tax filers...

The electronic age has changed us all, but libraries remain the heartbeat of their communities."
